

New Shutesbury Library

Schematic Design #2

June 28, 2023

- Meeting room seats 49 and has a wide opening into the lobby for overflow when needed.
- Adult and Children areas have seating and collection space specified in the building program and lots of natural lighting.
- A sliding door between the Adult and Children areas will provide acoustical separation when programs take place.

A conceptual view of the Adult area. The teen room, reading nook, and small study room are on the right. There is space for comfortable seating near the large windows on the left. The children's room is at the far end of the building.

The Community meeting room, on the south end of the building, seats 49 and will have a wide opening into the lobby for overflow when needed.

A view of the SE corner of the building. A 63kWh solar array, mounted on both sides, will provide 100 % of the building's electricity.
